

Personal CuraTour

Your museum experience
A bit more guided

Designed in Williamstown by Geoffrey, Julia and Kelvin

You enter a museum.

What's the first thing you do?...

PROBLEM

Museum visitors have different levels of enthusiasm, experience, and willingness to explore

Museum exhibits aren't properly appreciated

Visitors want more information about specific things they view unclear guidance = ineffective experience

DESIGN RESEARCH Pt 1

2 contextual inquiries with students

1 retrospective contextual inquiry with curator

All @ WCMA

Found: disconnect between visitor & curator expectations

DESIGN RESEARCH Pt 2

Familiarity is preferable

Desirable Context

Learning takes effort

Timing is important

Seamlessness vs. Guidance

Conversation is a better avenue of information

Control and pacing

High level:

Struggle to have
complete, intended,
and consistent experiences at the museum

SIX TASKS

Explore the museum

Find art you like

Experience museum as intended

SUMMARY

Our contextual inquiry found that users want more information & guidance

To solve this..

We decided on a watch app that provides curator and community suggested guidance & art information via audio

- > features ability to share and rate paths as community
- > voice narration about art pieces, automatic or at user's will
- > integrative, unobtrusive experience
